KRBD relies on local fundraising for much of our annual revenue, even more after the state cut all financial support for public broadcasters. We were conducting back-to-back fundraising events to help make up for the shortfall, but due to the pandemic and related restrictions, we are not able to get out into the community to raise funds. Due to continued restrictions and the likely economic downturn from the shutdown, we are concerned about our ability to raise money in the coming year or two, as people and local businesses will be watching their own budgets even more closely.

Has your non-profit received supplemental funding as a result of the pandemic? If yes, please explain how much was received and how it was utilized by your organization:

We received a federal PPP loan, and hope it will convert to a grant. It will pay for payroll expenses in FY20. We received $112,000 through the CARES Act appropriation to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Those funds will go toward reducing our anticipated future budget deficit. Our annual budget relies on local fundraising of about $300,000 -- a combination of direct donations, underwriting and events. We already had to cancel one major fundraiser -- our annual skiff raffle -- which grossed about $40,000 last year. Other important fundraisers may well be affected include a Halloween party, two more raffles, a couple of auctions and our on-air membership drives. We also expect underwriting support from local businesses to be down.

Are any additional matching grant funds available as a result of this grant application? If yes, please explain below:

Non-federal revenue is calculated into our annual Corporation for Public Broadcasting grant.

Has your organization received a Qualified Opinion on an audit or review? If so, please explain:
